Leveling System for Guided Reading and Early-Intervention Programs

Titles with Guided Reading Levels cited in this catalog have been officially leveled by using the Fountas & Pinnell Text Level Gradient™ Leveling System unless otherwise noted. Titles with estimated GRLs have been leveled by a trained reading consultant using the same text characteristics and guidelines. Early Intervention levels are provided for use in early intervention programs like Reading Recovery®. Visit lernerbooks.com for the most up-to-date leveling information.

Robots Compete

Two robots battle. Their arms push, and their wheels crash. The robots bump, hit, flip, and fall. Which one will win?

A program may tell a robot to move forward or backward, or to turn.

Engineers build robots. They program the robots, or give them instructions. These instructions tell robots what to do.

Dangerous Science

Scientists use helper robots too. These robots teach us about the world. They explore unsafe places. Heat and cold do not stop robots.

16

Robots dive in deep seas. No light reaches these areas. Robots map the seafloor. They even work under thick Arctic ice.

This robot swims under water like an eel.

Choosing Your Pet

Spend time with your puppy's mother. Is she the kind of dog you want your puppy to be when it is grown? Is she friendly?

Watch how the puppies behave. Sit with them. Which puppy is shy? Which is friendly? Which is happy and wags its tail?

Choose the puppy you want. A healthy puppy smells a little like milk. It has a cool, wet nose.

You can take your puppy home when it is eight- or ten-weeks old. Hold the puppy on your lap for the ride home. Bring a soft blanket. It calms the puppy. Plus, you have it in case the puppy pees or gets sick.

LET'S GROW BEANS

A bean plant starts to grow from a seed. The stem grows upward. Roots grow down into the soil.

Soon the plant makes flowers.

PACKING

My room is filled with boxes. Yesterday it was filled with stuffed animals and books and posters. Today it is filled with boxes that are filled with stuffed animals and books and posters. I'm supposed to be filling more boxes with my stuff. But I don't get it. If I don't want to move, how come I'm stuck packing? What I need is a helper. I yell from the top of the stairs.

"Momi!"
I wait for an answer. But I don't get one so I use my outdoor voice.
"MOM!"
She comes to the bottom of the stairs with an armload of boxes.
"Hey, Mom, what's big and brown and empty?"
"Mallory, I don't have time for jokes." Mom says. "We have to pack. We're moving in two days."
"I know. But what's big and brown and empty?"
Mom blows a piece of hair out of her mouth. "What?"
"The boxes in my room!" I laugh out loud.
"Mallory, that's about as funny as an overflowing toilet."
I happen to think an overflowing toilet is

3. My dad needs a vacation.

But he doesn't like vacations. Especially camping trips. Does he have a single reason for this? No. He has a million reasons:

- His study is at home. (He works at home.)
- His kitchen is at home (He does all the cooking.)
- His washing machine and dryer are at home. (He does the laundry.)
- His bed is at home.
- His bathroom is at home.
- He doesn't like driving.
- He definitely doesn't like driving far from home.
- He doesn't like sleeping in a crowded pop-up camper without a decent kitchen, washing machine, dryer, or study.

- He doesn't like sleeping on a camper mattress.
- He doesn't like sharing a camper with a guinea pig.
- He doesn't like the way guinea pigs smell.
- He's not crazy about the way I smell.
- He says frogs and crickets keep him up all night!
- He hates mosquitoes.
- He despises ticks.
- He doesn't like cooking over an open fire.
- He doesn't like campout food, not even marshmallows.
- He doesn't like campfires.
- He doesn't like campfire smoke.
- He doesn't like that kids and dogs run around all the time, making lots of noise and going to the bathroom outside.
- He doesn't like swimming in lakes because they're filled with fish, snakes, turtles, dogs, and screaming, splashing kids.
- He doesn't like swimming in lakes because

Chapter 8

The Bolds were all still feeling a little sorry for themselves the next morning over a rather late breakfast when Minnie came to visit with Walter, whom she'd been taking for a walk. I say rather, but Walter didn't like to walk more than a few meters. He liked to be cried, preferably tucked inside Minnie's jacket, which is where he was this morning.

The twins told Minnie about the late-night trip to help the foxes and the rather unpleasant welcome they'd received.

"Gosh," said Minnie. "What a hot-tempered old fox."

"But the worst of it is," said Betty, rubbing her ankle, "we didn't get to tell him about the post control van."

"He wouldn't listen!" said Bobby. "He still doesn't know the danger he's facing."

"Oh, don't bother about him," said Stumpy the goose, who had been trying for several minutes to get some marmalade out of the jar with his beak. "Focus get all they deserve. I have no sympathy for them."

"That's not very kind," said Miss Paulina.

Chapter 7

It was a short ride to the immigration station, an old building that had once housed hundreds of families who wanted to live in America. Cody was eager to see inside the place and find the poems left by former residents.

As soon as the train came to a stop, Delbert Schnikey hopped off, while Ranger Yee stood up and began the last part of her talk.

"The immigration station was built in 1905 here in China Cove. Believe it or not, immigrants came from eighty-four different countries, but most were Chinese, and many others were Japanese. The building was actually more of a detention center, since many Chinese people were not welcome in the country. When the first immigrants arrived here around 1848, about the time gold was discovered in California, they were not allowed to look for gold. Instead, they were forced to do difficult, dangerous jobs like building the Central Pacific Railroad. Then in 1882, a new law made it very hard for Chinese people to come here at all."

Wow, thought Cody. It was hard to believe that some people weren't let into the country just because they were Chinese. If that were still true, Quinn and several of her other friends might not be here.

"After the law was passed," the ranger continued, "you could only enter the country if your father was already a US citizen. Even then, many of those people had to go through difficult interrogations that could last for hours, days, even weeks. While they waited, they often carved poems into the wooden walls to kill time and express their feelings. You'll see some of these poems as we tour the building."

"I think my great-great-grandfather left some

CHAPTER 6

I just wasn't expecting the answer to take that challenge so strongly.

WEL... COME... TO... SCHOOL.

WEL... COME... TO... SCHOOL.

"Hey, Fisher?" Veronica said, looking up at the huge scrolling LED sign Fisher had put above one of Wompab's main trailers. "Think you might be missing something?"

"What?" Fisher said, marveling at it, his face aglow with a clockwork smile. "It all looks good to me—60, no, 60, no, no, no, no, no..." He repeated to himself as he ran to the control panel and frantically attempted to input the correct spelling of school.

To say that he was nervous would be an understatement. He was awfully nervous after five exposures.

WEL... COME... TO... SCHOOL now scrolled across the flashing sign. He breathed a sigh of relief.

Veronica laid a hand on his arm. "Look," she said. "I want you to know, I hope I'm wrong about the Gemini. I hope I'm just being... paranoid."

10

"I understand," Fisher said. It was Monday morning. Since Saturday, he and Veronica had barely spoken about the alien's arrival. They had barely spoken at all. Fisher was still a little hurt that Veronica was being so negative about the single most important event in human history. "Both spaces just have to work to understand each other."

"Right," Veronica said. But she sounded uncertain.

A few phone calls to the right people and the influence of NASA and the MORONS team had gotten the Gemini permission to take up study at Wompab in the guise of foreign exchange students. Because Fisher's parents had headed the M3 project, they'd taken responsibility for the well-being of the alien visitors. The bus the Gemini would be living on would stay parked at the Bas residence.

It had taken a significant amount of behind-the-scenes work to create the cover IDs for the Gemini. To ensure they'd be welcome at the school, Principal Tied had received a personal call from the vice president letting him know how important it was that this group of "foreign visitors" would be allowed to take classes at Wompab. The Independent Federal Republic of Ominotria was—or so the pamphlet being passed around school read—a tiny nation between Lithuania and Belarus. Most of Fisher's classmates hadn't heard of Lithuania or Belarus, so sticking a made-up country between them wasn't that difficult. To explain the diverse appearance

Sunlight filtered through the foliage of the Weeping Woods and lay like a shower of gold across its spongy floor. Raider ran to and fro in front of the group with his nose down, sniffing for rabbits. He found none, but excitedly now and then in startling birds, which flapped off screaming into the distance.

Eventually the trees thinned out and a high wall of mossy brick could be glimpsed between them. Mickey called the dog to heel and brought the party to a halt.

"Okay," he murmured, "this is it. I suggest we turn right, follow the wall to the corner, and sneak along to the gateway. If there's nothing to be seen from there and nobody's around, we'll go up the driveway. Keep it quiet from now on."

They reached the corner from which the great gateposts were visible. Stone griffins crouched on top of the posts, their heads wreathed in the foliage of the ancient trees which grew inside the grounds and hung over the wall. A poor road, perpetually in the shadow of the trees and scarred with cracks and potholes, ran parallel to the wall. The teens advanced cautiously, creeping along the strip of grass and weeds that separated the wall from the road. Few vehicles ever came this way, but they kept their ears open, ready to duck into the weeds at the sound of a motor.

No vehicle came, but a shock awaited them when they reached the gateway, because whoever had topped the wall with wire had also hung a pair of ugly steel gates on the posts. They were about ten feet high, they didn't match the gateposts, and they were closed.

The Secret

4 THE SECRET

Mon had a jar of emergency money tucked away in the cupboard. It had been there for so long that I knew she didn't remember it. I took my basketball fees from the jar. I planned to pay it back as soon as I could get to the bank, and I knew Mon wouldn't notice.

Then I needed Mon's signature on the forms. I practiced signing Mon's name on a blank paper several times before signing the form. Coach A was never going to question that signature. I did a good job.

The lunch meeting started right on schedule. All the girls were dropping off their permission forms on a small desk in front of Coach A. Most of the girls' parents had already sent an e-transfer for the fees, but some girls handed Coach A the cash. I added my signed forms to the top of the pile and gave her my forty dollars.

"Okay, I think we will get started," Coach A began. "I see we are all here, so let's start with what I expect of you: Number one — you must show commitment in this team if you want to play. You will attend all the practices — no excuses unless you are too ill to come to school. Do not plan birthdays and special events on practice days. You have the practice schedule for the whole season. I expect you to work around it. I also expect your full effort at every practice. We have twelve girls on this team. There are more who did not make the team and would be happy to take your place. At practice, we go hard so that we can play hard in the games. You will make every decision based on what is best for the team, not what's best for you. When one person messes up, the whole team accepts it. We will use mistakes to learn and grow. When one person has a great game, credit goes to the whole team. A team's strength is the ability of the team to work together, to take care of each other, to appreciate each other. Everybody good so far?"

We all nodded. We really just wanted to get our uniforms and schedules.

"I believe that on this team, you can learn everything really important in life — commitment, respect, teamwork and learning from mistakes."

Coach A paused. There was an awkward silence. I am not sure I believe that, I thought. But ... can I please have my jersey?"

"Okay," Coach A continued, clapping her hands in front of her. "I will be meeting with each of you over the next two weeks to talk about your role on the
