Leveling System for Guided Reading and Early-Intervention Programs

Titles with Guided Reading Levels cited in this catalog have been officially leveled by using the Fountas & Pinnell Text Level Gradient™ Leveling System unless otherwise noted. Titles with estimated GRLs have been leveled by a trained reading consultant using the same text characteristics and guidelines. Early Intervention levels are provided for use in early intervention programs like Reading Recovery®*.

Visit lernerbooks.com for the most up-to-date leveling information.

ABOUT Decodable Books

Our early literacy offerings are informed by the Science of Reading and can be used to support reading instruction, practice, and engagement. Used in order, they provide a progressive scope and sequence that builds a student's confidence in their ability to read independently. Decodable books are a critical part of any literacy program, used alongside any phonics curriculum as a structured way to practice phonics skills.

How to use decodable books to support early literacy

Step 1: Learn Letter Sounds

Alongside explicit reading instruction, students need practice connecting letters and the sounds they make to the written word.

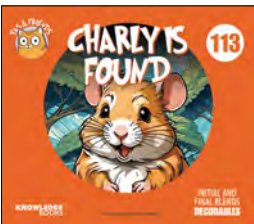

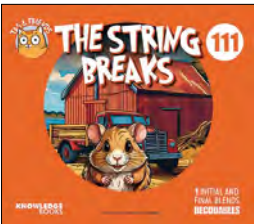

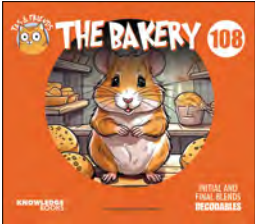

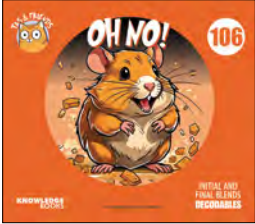

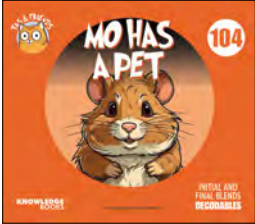

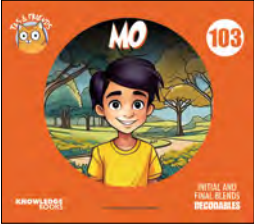

Step 2: Read Decodable Books

As students progress, they need access to books that allow them to become proficient in decoding, comprehending, and writing to solidify their learning.

Step 3: Practice Reading to Develop Fluency

Like other skills, things like decoding, letter knowledge, and word reading decay without practice. Students need engaging books to keep their skills sharp.

Tas and Friends

William Ricketts illus. Dean Maynard

With a gang of cute characters, Tas and Friends introduces simple words that are perfect for helping beginners to master their reading skills. Each story builds phonics and decoding skills and is ideal for pre-reading in classrooms and home.

Getting your hands dirty with planting is fun—and good for the planet! That's especially true when it comes to native plants. These are species that have naturally evolved in a specific region or ecosystem rather than being introduced.

Fun Fact: Native plants are well-adapted to the conditions where they grow. Native plants are also better at withstanding drought, while a native maple tree needs the cooler weather of northern regions. Native plants are also better at withstanding ecological balance, other pollinators such as bees and butterflies rely on them. Learn to spot the native plants in your region or even try planting native to become a bio-helper!

Monarch Butterfly Garden

Check with your local community gardens or visit a local butterfly garden to learn more about what plants are native to your region and can attract monarchs.

1. Check with your local community gardens or visit a local butterfly garden to learn more about what plants are native to your region and can attract monarchs.
2. Choose a list of native flowers that monarchs love to visit. Native plants are well-adapted to the conditions where they grow.
3. Ask your local garden center for advice on how to plant native plants. With a little help, you can make a garden that is both beautiful and eco-friendly.
4. Allow your time to pass. Monarchs will find their way to your garden.

Congressman

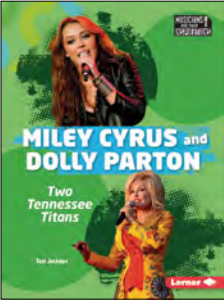

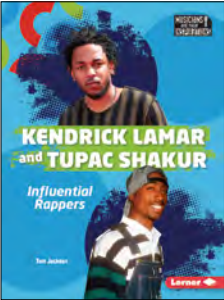

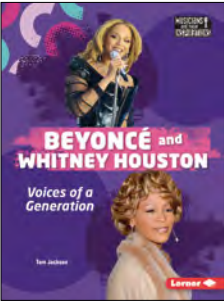

John then turned to politics.

In 1981, he won a seat on Georgia's Atlanta City Council. In 1986, he was elected to the House of Representatives to represent Georgia's 5th District.

John soon became one of the most respected members of Congress. He worked to fight poverty and gun violence, improve education, and change healthcare.

He spoke out against racism. And he worked to get the Voting Rights Act renewed several times.

right. Each Sunday, he used music to touch the souls of those around him.

Walker had already accomplished so much, but he wanted to do more to help others. All around him, he saw people without homes, struggling to pay bills. In 1992 at age 53, he started his own church in Saint Paul. Morning Star Missionary Baptist Church became known for its shelter program. Walker worked with a Catholic group to shelter up to forty people each night. Walker helped people in his community find housing—and hope and faith as well.

DEATH January 27, 2020

I never talking about my Holocaust experience in 1985. We were gathered in the synagogue for Shabbat—the Jewish day of rest. The synagogue asked them before to discuss their experiences. I would usually say we were child Jewish about my youth, but on that day I said yes.

I was a little girl in France at the beginning of World War II. I have no recollection of Jewish life in France before the war. My mother never talked about her Jewishness, perhaps to protect us. Children never asked their lives or homes, and in that time, it could have meant the difference between life and death. My father was already a prisoner of Germany.

I remember that my mother was a mother figure for me. I couldn't understand why she had to come to with her parents.

In 1941, through an underground Jewish agency, my mother placed my name and me with the Mithashi, a Catholic family living in a small town in central France.

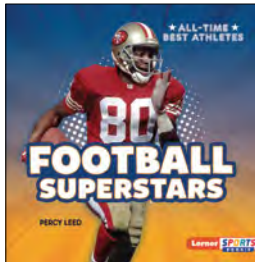

As a mother, I now realize how difficult it must have been for her to give up her children. But she knew the Nazis were rounding up Jews, women and children were increasingly being shipped to the death camps.

Madeleine Mithashi dominated my mother. The policy came, and my mother was forced to take the girls back to Paris. She didn't say goodbye to us. She didn't give us a reason why she was leaving. She was disappointed. On her return to Paris, she was picked up and sent to Germany—and then to Auschwitz.

Madeleine Mithashi said we were mother had abandoned us because she was a bad woman. What is a bad woman to a five-year-old little girl? I had no idea. She was a bad woman, but she was a mother.

We lived with Madeleine Mithashi. She treated us like her own children. She shared everything with us: food, clothing, shelter—and her Catholic religion. Reading my childhood was no problem because
