What Is a Tardigrade?

We realize this may not be the most exciting or enticing question with which to begin a book about superheros.

However, it's the question we got asked the most! So, let's begin...

THIS is a tardigrade.

A pig-like small green tardigrade from the nickname of Miss Piggy.

Go! Leg! Go! Go!

Go! Go!

Good question! Not responsible to answer! However, you do know it that any animals could include in a collection of items. You can collect pictures of tardigrades, particularly more difficult.

Cool. Kind of weird. But cool. So how many tardigrades are there on Earth?

10,000,000,000,000,000

Still like what I'm hearing. But why are they superheros?

A group of tardigrades were frozen solid for 30 years—and they survived!

You can get tardigrades from the Internet and you won't kill them.

What These guys sound awesome. So how come I've never seen one?

Well! Tardigrades are small. Seriously small. But whenever said that superheros have to be big targets?

6 BIGGEST TREE

Stretching high and wide into the sky from the forests of California, USA, the General Sherman is the world's biggest living tree.

General Sherman is a giant sequoia tree that measures 275 feet (84 m) tall. This makes it shorter than the world's tallest living tree – hyperion, a Californian redwood tree – but because General Sherman's trunk is so thick, its overall size is much bigger!

General Sherman is thought to be around 2,200 years old. It grows by adding new wood to its trunk every year. Some people have estimated that, in one year, it grows enough extra wood to build a line or pavilion house!

DID YOU KNOW?

It is estimated that there is enough wood in the General Sherman to make 3 billion matchsticks!

SUPER FACT

Some of General Sherman's branches are thicker than other 'types of trees' trunks!

Hair-Raising Predators

Dive into this high-interest series exploring the world's most extreme predators! With impressive imagery, jaw-dropping facts, and a 1-10 deadliest scale, this series is a real page-turner for curious kids.

No.10 KEN GRIFFEY JR.

Griffey is best known for his time with the Seattle Mariners. He is still their all-time team leader in home runs. He hit a home run in the final game ever played in the Kingdome, Seattle's long-time stadium. He ended his career with 630 home runs, which ranks seventh on the Major League Baseball (MLB) all-time list.

Griffey was a five-tool player. He could run, hit for average, hit for power, field, and throw. Few players in MLB history could match Griffey's skills at the plate and in the field.

KEN GRIFFEY JR. STATS

Batting Average	.284
Hits	2,781
Home Runs	630
RBIs	1,836

Fans loved watching Ken Griffey Jr. play. The Kid became famous for his relaxed style and trademark smile. Griffey was so popular that a video game was named after him.

Then it hit me.
I didn't know if that was still true. He had been a group, sure, but now?
I wasn't sure now, because when it came down to it, my friends weren't just my friends. They were our friends. And...
What if they weren't? What if I'd made such an ass out of myself this was when our friends would become Mason's friends?
Maybe they already were. I'm not Mr. Outgoing. My mom says I'm like my dad: I talk like every word costs money. I prefer watching. I like listening to people, especially funny, outgoing people like...
Mason.
Fuck. Why had I been such an idiot?
How had I been such an idiot?
Okay. Assuming Mason wasn't there yet, would it be better if I got there first? I could sit down, find something to do. Talk to Nico or AJ, and not look at Mason when he showed. I could handle that, right? I could work on photos, or flip through my physics textbook or...

Or something. Anything. I couldn't walk in and have everyone stare—that I for sure couldn't handle—and I was running out of time if I didn't just cross the hall and go inside.
I didn't move.
Then it was too late. Mason came through the doors at the other side of the hallway, heading right for the GSA door, with Maya and Amélie.
I ducked back behind the corner.
Mason was talking. I couldn't make out any words, but I knew his voice. Maya and Amélie answered. They weren't whispering, exactly, but definitely making sure no one could hear them.
I risked looking around the corner. Mason wore his favorite blue shirt and dark jeans combo. He gestured while he talked, so he was telling them a story. He always talked with his hands.
Mason looked great. He always did when he wore that shirt. It made you notice his grey eyes, and it fit him really well. Tight in a good way.
This is so unfair.

On our website lernerbooks.com/FAC, we've compiled articles from librarians and educators with recommendations for how to evaluate, discuss, or teach these classics by providing readers with context and critical analysis or pairing classics with books featuring BIPOC voices and authors.*
